The sophomere class held its class supper in Bennington, Vt., ast week. The banquet was the occasion of the transferring of the historic "Sabrina" to the sophomores from the seniors, who have held the coveted statue for two years. The juniors and freshmen, who are the "odd" class from which "Sabrina" is kept by the "even" classes, were on the watch for this banquet, and were prepared to secure the statue by any means possible. The sophomores, however, eluded their vigilance, and, taking a special train from Amherst, were out of reach before their absence was discovered by their rivals.
